Abstract: The Fathers of the Second Vatican Council, via the constitution Sacrosanctum Concilium, postulated a reform of the marriage ceremony. As a result, the marriage rites contained in the Rituale Romanum of 1952 were abolished by the promulgation of the Ordo celebrandi matrimonium in 1969. Until 1988, apart from the Society of Saint Pius X, marriage was generally not celebrated according to the earlier Ritual. After the institution of the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei in 1988, permissions were issued for the celebration of marriage according to the Roman Ritual. Individual permissions were granted by the Dicasteries of the Roman Curia, and especially by the aforementioned Commission. Some communities were also established which were equipped with the special right to celebrate the Sacrament of Marriage according to the Rituale Romanum of 1952. Diocesan bishops also issued ad casum permissions and erected personal parishes and other communities. This legal status lasted until Pope Benedict XVI's motu proprio Summorum Pontificum entered into force in 2007. Then, a universal law was introduced which permitted the celebration of marriages according to the earlier Ritual under specified conditions.

Streszczenie: Ojcowie II Soboru Watykańskiego w konstytucji Sacrosanctum Concilium postulowali reformę obrzędu zawarcia małżeństwa. W rezultacie obrzędu małżeństwa umieszczone w Rituale Romanum z 1952 roku zostały zniesione poprzez promulgację Ordo celebrandi matrimonium w 1969 roku. Do roku 1988 roku – poza Bractwem Kapłańskim Świętego Piusa X – zasadniczo nie celebrowano małżeństwa według wcześniejszego rytuału. Dopiero po powołaniu Papieskiej Komisji Ecclesia Dei w 1988 r. zaczęto wydawać zezwolenia na celebrację małżeństwa według Rytuału Rzymskiego. Poszczególnych zezwoleń udzielały Dykasterie Kurii Rzymskiej, a szczególnie wspomniana Komisja. Erygowano również wspólnoty, które wyposażono w prawo specjalne celebracji według Rituale Romanum z 1952 roku. Biskupi diecezjalni także wydawali zezwolenia ad casum, erygowali parafie personalne i inne wspólnoty. Taki stan prawny trwał do wydania motu proprio Summorum Pontificum Benedykta XVI w 2007 roku, kiedy wprowadzono prawo powszechnie na celebację małżeństw według wcześniejszego rytuału według określonych zasad.

Introduction

After the Second Vatican Council, a reform of the marriage rites included in the Rituale Romanum of 1952 was made in consideration of the guidelines contained in the conciliar constitution Sacrosanctum Concilium. After the Council, however, there were many members of the faithful who desired to participate both in the rites of marriage and the Holy Mass according to the books of 1962. This resulted from their adherence to the old forms of the Roman Rite. Thus, the needed permissions ad casum for the celebration of these rites were issued. Communities in which these liturgical books were celebrated according to their own rite were also established.

The period described in this study concerns the years 1965-2007, following Vaticanum II. This is the time, starting from the motu proprio Sacram liturgiam and the instruction Inter Oecumenici of 1964, the initial changes to the rites and discipline of marriage according to the guidelines of the conciliar constitution Sacrosanctum Concilium were introduced. Then, following the introduction of the new Ritual of Marriage in 1969, the marriage rites included in the 1952 Rituale Romanum were abrogated. This article presents the reform of the sacrament's liturgical celebration, the characteristics of the rites themselves, and the permissions that were issued to celebrate the old marriage rites until 2007. As a result of Pope Benedict XVI's motu proprio Summorum Pontificum, the rules for the celebration of marriage according to the earlier form of the Roman Rite were introduced as a universal law.

It should be noted that this article is the first part of a broader study. In the forthcoming one, the regulations introduced in 2007 and the current situation due to Pope Francis's 2021 motu proprio Traditionis custodes will be presented. In this way, the next article will continue the matrimonial theme and the current Code of Canon Law's discipline in the celebration of these rites will also be taken into account. Although this topic was partly taken up in the monograph entitled: Nadzwyczajna forma rytu rzymskiego. Status prawny liturgii i wspólnot of 2021, it seems appropriate to conduct a broader, multi-faceted analysis on the issue. In addition, the changing legal situation connected to the celebration of marriage creates the need for further studies. These two articles are in line with the pastoral needs of the lay and clerical faithful.

1. A reform of the liturgy of marriage and a short characterization of the rites

1.1. The liturgy prior to the Second Vatican Council

Prior to the liturgical reform following Vaticanum II, the rites of the Sacraments were in principle contained in one liturgical book. The Rituale Romanum of 1614 should be noted here as it was the first ritual approved after the Council of Trent and is the basis of the later Roman Rituals. The Rituale Romanum of 1925 should also be mentioned. This was issued while taking into account the rules of the 1917 Code of Canon Law, the rubrics of the Missale Romanum of 1920, and the decrees of the Roman Curia¹. The last typical edition of this book was the Rituale Romanum, which was approved on January 25, 1952, by the Sacred Congregation of Rites (cf. CIC/17, c. 1100)². This Ritual is the book that contains the earlier form of the celebration of marriage after the Second Vatican Council. Such an arrangement occurred as this particular liturgical book was in force in 1962, a point which will be elaborated on later in the study. The marriage rites are contained in Titulus VIII of this Roman Ritual. The book contains the following: praenotanda (Caput 1); the rites of the celebration of marriage (Caput 2); the prayers of the solemn blessing of the spouses without a Mass, according to the indult of the Apostolic See (Caput 3); the prayers over the spouses without a Mass, according to the indult of the Apostolic See – when the solemn blessing of the spouses cannot be given (Caput 4); the prayers of blessing of a pregnant woman before childbirth (Caput 5); the prayers for blessing for a woman after childbirth (Caput 6); and the prayers of blessing spouses on the occasion of their 25th or 50th marriage anniversary (Caput 7)³. It must be emphasized that the marriage ceremony included in this Ritual had an exceptionally simple form and was treated as a framework that can be supplemented with other customs and ceremonies adopted in the region⁴. The Pontificale Romanum of 1961/62 also features the rites of the celebration of marriage and the prayer over the spouses⁵.

In addition to the Rituale Romanum used throughout the Latin Church, bilingual and multilingual national rituals were also published before the post-conciliar reform of the liturgy. For example, the Ritual for France was published in 1948 (the second edition in 1956), the Ritual for Germany in 1950, the Ritual for Italy in 1956, and the Ritual for Brazil in 1958. With regard to the United States of America, the Supplementum Ritualis Romani was issued in 1953, of a woman after her delivery of a living child (Caput 5); the prayers for blessing of a woman after delivery of a dead child (Caput 6); and the blessing of spouses on the occasion of their 25th or 50th marriage anniversary (Caput 7)⁸. According to this Ritual, almost all texts of the marriage ceremony could be read by the celebrant in Polish language. Additionally, the prayer for blessing of the wedding rings, the solemn prayer of blessing over the spouses after the Pater noster during the Mass, and the last solemn blessing (benedictio solemnis) could also be read by a lector in Polish. Alternatively, all prayers could be recited in the vernacular when a marriage was contracted without the celebration of the Mass. This Ritual contains some of the postulates written in the conciliar constitution *Sacrosanctum Concilium*⁹. These Rituals are also used as the earlier form of the Roman Rite, as will be described later.

According to these Rituals and the 1962 Missale Romanum, the Sacrament of Marriage was celebrated directly before the Holy Mass (sometimes, in exceptional circumstances, without the Mass). The solemn blessing of the spouses was inseparable from the Eucharist, therefore, it could be given outside of the Mass only after obtaining the papal indult. Then, usually – taking into account the rubrics – a votive Mass of the second class (Pro Sponsis) was celebrated. During the Mass, the priest said the solemn prayer upon the spouses (after the Pater noster) and gave them the solemn blessing (CIC/17, c. 1101)¹⁰. The solemn blessing was therefore something different from the matrimonial consent (CIC/83¹¹, c. 1057), as canonist Michael Rosset pointed out. Moreover, it was essentially addressed to the wife, which was firmly established in the liturgical tradition of the Roman Rite¹².

It is also worth noting that there was a rite of betrothal in the pre-conciliar books. An example is the engagement rite developed in 1962 for the USA as a supplement to the 1952 Roman Ritual and the national Ritual (cf. CIC/17, c. 1017; CIC/83, c. 1062)¹³.

1.2. The liturgy after the Second Vatican Council

The Fathers of the Second Vatican Council noticed the need for a wider use of the vernacular in the celebration of the Sacraments. They underlined an option for the issuance of national rituals, while at the same time preserving local traditions during the event of contracting a marriage¹⁴. They decided to redevelop and enrich the rites of marriage contained in the Rituale Romanum of 1952 in order to more clearly indicate the grace of the Sacrament and to emphasize the tasks and duties of the spouses. They also noted a need to amend the solemn blessing of spouses so that it would express the same obligations of both spouses to mutual fidelity. They indicated that it would be possible to say it in the vernacular. In addition, they emphasized that the Sacrament of Marriage should be contracted during the Holy Mass after a homily. However, in the case of a marriage outside of Mass, the Epistle and Gospel (according to the mass formulary for the spouses) should be read. At the end of the ceremony, the spouses should receive the solemn blessing (cf. CIC/83, c. 841)¹⁵.

The discussed guidelines of Vaticanum II were introduced by Pope Paul VI through the motu proprio Sacram liturgiam and the 1964 instruction Inter oecumenici. Through these, he established, among other things, that marriage is to be contracted during the Holy Mass. If it is done outside of the Mass, readings should always be proclaimed,

For it completes the grace of the sacrament and it recalls the duties and obligations of the spouses in the life they are beginning. This is the reason for the change in discipline which is authorized by the Constitution: 'The blessing is always to be given to the spouses'. Although these words refer directly to the celebration of Matrimony outside of Mass, it is altogether fitting that they be extended to its celebration within Mass. and the solemn blessing given¹⁶. Finally, the reform of the marriage liturgy was accomplished by the issuance of the Ordo celebrandi matrimonium. This was the first book introduced on the celebration of the Sacraments after the Second Vatican Council. The new Ritual of Marriage was promulgated by the decree of March 19, 1969, and entered into force on July 1, 1969. At the end of the decree, it is indicated that it enters into force Contrariis quibuslibet minime obstantibus (all things to the contrary notwithstanding)¹⁷. Consequently, the introduction of the new Ritual of Marriage was the abrogation of the marriage rites contained in Titulus VIII of the 1952 Roman Ritual and the rites contained in national rituals (CIC/17, c. 22)¹⁸. The new Caeremoniale Episcoporum was also introduced in 1984, which describes the marriage rites as celebrated by the bishop¹⁹.

The second typical edition of the new Ritual of Marriage was published on March 19, 1990, and contained additional rites resulting from the norms of the 1983 Code of Canon Law (CIC/83, c. 1055-1165)²⁰. According to this book, in light of the Council's recommendations, the basic form of this Ritual is the rite of marriage contracted during the Holy Mass (Caput 1)²¹. In addition, the new Ritual also includes: the rites of marriage without the Mass with the rite of receiving Holy Communion (Caput 2); the rites of the marriage contract with a layman assisting as a qualified witness (Caput 3); and the rites of marriage between a Catholic and non-Christian or a catechumen (Caput 4).

National rituals conducted in their associated vernacular languages were also published. The Ritual for Poland was issued via the Sacred Congregation for Divine Worship's decree on November 16, 1972²². However, the current Ritual was approved by the Congregation for Divine Worship and the Discipline of the Sacraments on May 4, 1993²³. The code legislator provides that a conference of bishops may develop its own marriage rites corresponding to the local and folk customs (CIC/83, c. 1120)²⁴.

It may be noted that the rites for the celebration of the Mass have changed, especially after the 1970 Missale Romanum's entry into force. Another reform took place in 1975. Nowadays, the rites of the celebration of the Pro Sponsis Mass contained in the Missale Romanum of 2002, with the changes introduced in 2008, are currently in force. The reformed rites include three mass formularies with the final blessing, three prefaces, and three new texts of the solemn prayer over the spouses²⁵.

2. The matter of the legal basis for the celebration of marriage

Since the withdrawal of the rites of marriage according to the Rituale Romanum of 1952 until 1988, the documents of common law (concerning the introduction of the new liturgical books) did not mention the possibility of celebrating the liturgy of marriage in the old form. Since 1969, elderly and sick priests could – with the permission of their own Ordinary – use the earlier Breviarium

However, concerning the celebration of the Holy Mass, according to the privileges described above, the changes in the rites that had occurred until 1967 had to be taken into account, as indicated in the published documents. The celebration of the Mass according to the Missale Romanum of 1962 (without considering later changes) could only take place with the permission of the diocesan bishop under the decree Quattuor abhinc annos, issued by the Congregation for Divine Worship of October 3, 1984²⁸. On July 2, 1988, Pope John Paul II issued the apostolic letter motu proprio Ecclesia Dei adficta, in which he urged the diocesan bishops to issue these necessary permissions in light of this decree²⁹. As a result, according to these listed documents, the indults issued in 1969-1988 concerned only the Missale Romanum and the Breviarium Romanum – not the Rituale Romanum.

Although the above-mentioned documents did not concern the celebration of marriage, the practice was still altered in 1988. This change was connected with the activity of the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei, which had been established that year through the aforementioned motu proprio Ecclesia Dei adficta. This body of the Roman Curia became competent in that matter connected with the liturgy of 1962. Then, by the rescript Quia peculiare munus of October 18, 1988, the Commission also received the competence necessary for the radical sanation of marriages invalidly contracted by the faithful attached to this liturgy (CIC/83, c. 1165 § 1)³⁰. In addition, the Congregation for Divine Worship, and the Discipline of the Sacraments, after consulting with this Commission, issued the Responsio Generalis on October 18, 1999. In this document, the Dicastery mentioned the possibility of celebrating the liturgy according to the previous liturgical books (iuxta antecedentes libros liturgicos). The need to accept the books reformed after the Second Vatican Council, including the renewed Ordo celebrandi matrimonium, was emphasized³¹. This illustrates that the motu proprio Ecclesia Dei adflicta was interpreted in a broad way and was related to the permissions issued for that liturgy celebrated according to the Rituale Romanum of 1952.

Commission Ecclesia Dei should be quoted. Although the letter has a private character, it provides important information for this study. In it, the Commission confirmed that it had always included the Sacrament of Marriage in its affirmative responses to various questions regarding the liceity of the celebration of the Sacraments according to the Ritual in force in 1962³³. In addition, in many other private replies written before 2007, the Commission assured inquirers of the possibility of celebrating the rites of the 1962 books, not only the Roman Missal of John XXIII³⁴. The clarification is understandable because this Sacrament – although it is celebrated outside the Holy Mass – is connected with the rites of the Missale Romanum. From 1988, the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei acknowledged the given permissions and issued its own permissions for the celebration of marriage according to the Rituale Romanum of 1952.

In practice, diocesan bishops also issued permission to celebrate the Sacrament of Marriage in the old form of the Roman Rite. In his article on the topic, Canadian canonist Peter Vere cites a private response made by the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei of May 17, 2002. In this letter, the Commission confirmed that there had never been any objection to the local Ordinary authorizing the celebration of marriage according to the 1952 *Rituale Romanum*³⁵. Moreover, under the motu proprio Ecclesia Dei adficta, diocesan bishops were able to erected personal parishes for the faithful who adhered to the earlier forms of the Roman liturgy (CIC/83, c. 518; cf. c. 383 § 2). This possibility was also mentioned in the documents of the Congregation for Divine Worship and the Discipline of the Sacraments of 1999 and the Congregation for the Clergy of 2002³⁶. An example of a parish erected in the years 1988-2007 is the parish of St. Francis de Sales in Mableton in the Archdiocese of Atlanta in the USA, which was established by Archbishop John F. Donoghue on January 27, 1999. Another example is the parish erected by Bishop Dominique Rey on September 15, 2005, whose seat is the church of Saint Francis of Paule in Toulon, France. In this decree of erection, the possibility of using the books of 1962, and therefore also the earlier Rituale Romanum, was clearly indicated³⁷.

In practice, therefore, even though the decree Quattuor abhinc annos and the motu proprio Ecclesia Dei adflicta concerned the Missale Romanum, the celebration of marriage in the old form was possible before 2007 due to an indult granted by the Apostolic See or a diocesan bishop. However, it has not been specified whether such permission could be issued by the Ordinary – who was not, in law, equal to the diocesan bishop (CIC/17, c. 198; CIC/83, c. 134). In addition, in the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei‘s responses cited above, it should be noted that a certain, constant practice of granting permission for the celebration of this Sacrament (sempre inclusio; has always held) is emphasized. Furthermore, the celebration of marriage was explicitly mentioned in these letters³⁸. It cannot be ruled out that the practice of issuing permissions for the celebration of marriage resulted from the fact of combining these rites with the Holy Mass, a point which has already been underlined.

3. The special right of the celebration of marriage in the communities

It should be mentioned that in the years 1965-2007, several communities received the right to celebrate the liturgy of the 1962 books, including the celebration of marriage according to the Rituale Romanum of 1952. The most characteristic and well-known communities will be discussed here. The majority of them were established by the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei, pursuant to the aforementioned rescript Quia peculiare munus of 1988. The Commission itself also confirmed this in private responses addressing its competence with regard to establishing communities for the celebration of the liturgy according to the books of 1962³⁹.

Before describing the communities erected since 1988, we must first mention the Society of Saint Pius X (SSPX), which was founded by Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre. The community was erected as a pia unio on November 1, 1970, by Bishop François Charrière – Ordinary of the Diocese of Lausanne-Geneva-Fribourg in Switzerland (CIC/17, c. 707 § 1)⁴⁰. As the Rituale Romanum of 1952 was not explicitly mentioned in this decree and the approved Statutes, the community had to obtain the permission necessary to use this book and, consequently, to celebrate the Sacrament of Marriage. However, the Society was suspended by the local Ordinary on May 6, 1975, and so lost the right to use the former liturgical books (CIC/17, c. 699 § 1)⁴¹. To this end, it is difficult to find detailed information on the rules for using the earlier Roman Ritual. The SSPX was the first community since the post-conciliar reform of these rites wherein priests could assist at marriages and celebrate the Holy Mass using the books of the 1962 typical edition.

The activities of the Priestly Fraternity of Saint John Mary Vianney in Campos, Brazil, founded in 1988 by Bishop Antônio de Castro Mayer, should also be included in this discussion. This community celebrated the liturgy according to the books of 1962, including the 1952 Rituale Romanum, but without permission of the Apostolic See. These priests were under ecclesial censures from 1982 until the early 2000s⁴². The community's canonical situation was normalized in 2002, an event which will be described later in the article. In addition to this Fraternity, marriages in the old form of the liturgy were celebrated by communities attached to the SSPX and sedevacantism. These communities also celebrated the Mass without ecclesial unity⁴³.

When describing the celebration of marriage according to the earlier Rituale Romanum, the July 27, 1988 decree of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, should also be mentioned. With this document, the Dicastery regulated the canonical status of the Abbey of Saint Mary Magdalene in Le Barroux, France, and the Abbey of Santa Cruz in Nova Friburgo, Brazil. In the issued decree, the Congregation allowed the members of these communities to use the liturgical books of 1962 and reside in their community's houses. It noted their right to receive the Sacraments according to the previous rites, including marriage, while maintaining can. 1122 CIC/83 (i.e., regarding the inscribing the reception of this Sacrament in the register where the baptism of the spouses has been inscribed)⁴⁴.

Then, on September 10, 1988, the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei issued a decree addressed to the Priestly Fraternity of Saint Peter (FSSP) as a society of apostolic life of the pontifical right. In the decree – based on the motu proprio Ecclesia Dei adficta – the Commission allowed the FSSP to celebrate the liturgy according to the books of 1962 in the churches and chapels of the community. However, the use of the Roman Ritual outside of these buildings required the permission of the local Ordinary. This right was included in the October 18, 1988 decree of erection, and in the Constitutions of the community⁴⁵.

The decree Animarum bonum of the Congregation for Bishops, issued on January 18, 2002, is also significant. Through this document, the Dicastery granted a special right to the newly established Personal Apostolic Administration of Saint John Mary Vianney in Campos, Brazil. The priests of the Administration (previously members of the Priestly Fraternity of Saint John Mary Vianney) could legally assist at marriages using the books of Pope Pius V, according to the typical edition in force during the pontificate of Pope John XXIII, i.e. from the discussed *Rituale Romanum*⁴⁶.

Another community that should be mentioned here is the Institute of the Good Shepherd, which is a society of apostolic life of the pontifical right. In the foundation decree of September 8, 2006, and in the community's Statutes, a note was made that indicated this community's celebrations would only be held according to the books of 1962, including the Rituale Romanum. This has been defined as the community's own rite (ritum proprium; le rite propre)⁴⁷.

A final word will be given here to those communities that were established by their local Ordinaries in the years from 1988 to 2007. An example of these is the Society of Saint John Cantius, which is a public association of the faithful erected by Archbishop Francis George – Ordinary of the Diocese of Chicago – on December 23, 1999. The priests of the community received the right to celebrate the liturgy according to the 1962 books, including the use of the 1952 Rituale Romanum for the celebration of marriage⁴⁸.

Conclusions

This study has demonstrated how, after the Second Vatican Council, changes were made to the discipline and shape of the rites of marriage. The rites contained in Titulus VIII of the Roman Ritual of 1952 were replaced by the rites contained in the post-conciliar Ordo celebrandi matrimonium, which was issued in 1969 and again (in its current version) in 1991. As a result, the old rites were abrogated by the promulgation of the new Ritual of Marriage.

The conducted analysis has shown that, from the reform of the liturgy of marriage after Vaticanum II to 1988, the Sacrament of Marriage in its old form was generally practiced by only in the Society of Saint Pius X, Priestly Fraternity of Saint John Mary Vianney, and sedevacantist communities. The establishment of the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei by Pope John Paul II in 1988 was the turning point. This body in the Roman Curia became responsible for the celebration of the 1962 liturgy. Since that year, the Apostolic See has continued the practice of issuing permission to use the 1952 Rituale Romanum, which was connected with the celebration of the Mass according to the Missale Romanum of Pope John XXIII. Diocesan bishops also issued ad casum permission, and so established personal parishes and other communities. This was done under the motu proprio Ecclesia Dei adflicta of 1988, even though it must be emphasized that this document itself did not mention the possibility of issuing permission to celebrate earlier marriage rites. However, the documents of the Congregation for Divine Worship and the Discipline of the Sacraments and the Congregation for the Clergy stated this possibility.

In addition, in the years 1988-2007, the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the Congregation for Bishops, and the Pontifical Commission Ecclesia Dei established communities that were equipped with a special right to celebrate the liturgy of marriage according to the Roman Ritual of 1952. Such a right was granted to, among others: the Abbey of Saint Mary Magdalene in Le Barroux, the Abbey of Santa Cruz in Nova Friburgo, the Priestly Fraternity of Saint Peter, the Personal Apostolic Administration of Saint John Mary Vianney, and the Institute of the Good Shepherd.

The discipline of the marriage celebration changed in 2007. Then, Pope Benedict XVI issued the apostolic letter motu proprio Summorum Pontificum, in which he introduced the universal law allowing the celebration of this Sacrament according to the 1952 Rituale Romanum, under certain conditions. These circumstances will be taken up in a following study, entitled: "The ecclesiastical discipline of the celebration of marriage according to the books of the Roman Rite of 1962 after the Second Vatican Council according to the motu proprio Summorum Pontificum and Traditionis custodes". This forthcoming article will also be published in the Ius Matrimoniale journal.
